African-Black Hetero-Procreation - Vs Euro-White Homo-Sexual Pathology

TaNefer Ankh embraces and revels in heterosexuality as a standard of sanity, health and wellbeing, and as in keeping with the ‘Way of Life’. Homosexuality is rejected, disdained and seen as pathological and destructive to human-beings – individual and societal. TaNefer Ankh recognizes homosexuality as anti-African/Black and as a White cultural pathology to be rejected without compromise.

African/Black Hetero-Procreation Vs Euro-White Homo-Sexual Pathology

The African/Black 'Way of Life' is the celebration of heterosexuality because it is the path to survival, longevity, perpetuation and immortality. The prohibition of, the disdain of, the repulsion of homosexuality is a natural response for a people loving life, rather than sexual perversion for the sake of emotions or limited self-nullifying gratification.

With respect to male-female relationships the ancient African civilization and society of Kemet speaks for Africa and the 'Way of Life'; and both has said no to homosexuality. The 'Way of Life' dictates heterosexual intercourse between male and female for the survival and perpetuation of the species; a dictate that has been honored by Africans for millions of years.

Homosexuality is not found as a norm within either African Civilization, neither the Gatherer-Hunters (e.g. Twa, Khoi-San), Animal Herders (e.g. Nubian), nor Farmers (e.g. Kemet). Homosexuality between the species results in its negation.

African / Kemet relationships are represented by the depiction of complimentary Ntru/Neteru (life-forces) and leaders (Nnut Bity/Pharaohs). The Ntru Ausar and Auset being the most famous married couple are the standard for male female relationships. Others are Nut and Shu – mother and father of the Principal Ntru; also the Eight/4-Pairs of Ntru (Hmnyw / Ogdoad), representing the essences of Creation. The Nnut Bity (leaders) of society too is represented as Male and Female married couples.

It stands to reason that if these are the national symbols of male-female relationships that they also represent the law, custom, and traditions of relationships. If homosexuality was a part of the society as a norm it would have been represented, however it is not.

Homosexuality (a sexual relationship between two consenting adults of the same sex) is nowhere shown in Kemet. The closest account of sexual pathology is a mythological story of sodomy (the rape of a male or female by an offending male) in the case of the wayward ntr (life-force) Set who, not unlike male dominant animal of a herd/pride, sexually imposed himself upon the ntr Heru, a defeated rival, as a symbolic display of imposed dominance. Nevertheless, it is a forced 'sexual' act and not a sexual relationship. This act of imposed dominance (sodomy) was frowned upon and seen as a perversion counter to the order and balance of life – Maat. Otherwise there are no examples of homosexuality or sodomy regarding actual persons in Kemet - the family standard for all African/Black People.

The standard bearers of 'African/Black family values - the Ntru and Nst Bity - revealed in the ideals of and the importance of male-female heterosexual procreation relationships in the celebration and perpetuation of Life.

Homosexuality: The Outcome Of White Sexual Pathology

Homosexuality is the result of white-on-white male rape and sexual imposition, and of the devaluation and dehumanization of females and children; and the resultant institutionalization of this sexual pathology as a norm.

Ancient whites are characterized by barbaric-nomadic hunters who, as they encountered others, were accustomed to war, conquest and denigration of each other - including raping and castrating the conquered males, and raping the females. The conquered males were prohibited from sexual intercourse with females and restricted to sex among themselves – conquered males; similar restrictions were imposed upon the females – no intercourse with the conquered males. Consequently homosexuality became a means of sexual gratification / relief. The resultant institutionalization of this sexual pathology became a norm within White societies – especially Greece and Rome, and institutionalized in their dominant institutions – i.e. the Catholic Church.

Crusading White Sexual Pathology - Homosexuality

With the conquest of Black societies, sexual pathology was introduced and imposed. Homosexuality was not only a furtherance of the White cultural pathology, but has, and continues to be used as a cultural weapon towards destroying the Black family and societal structures. Not unlike the intentions of White societies of old, the objective is the emasculation of the African/Black male as a tool, and a relationship of White dominance over Black people. Today the pathology of homosexuality remains an imposed pathology against Black people; it has not taken hold among African/Black people without imposition and advocacy.

The acceptance of homosexuality is a capitulation to White political and cultural domination, White pathological domination, and to death itself.

Our objectives has been to free (liberate) ourselves from White domination - enslavement, colonization and political-military - and establish the restoration (embrace) of the African 'Way of Life' (value-system) which is key to our health and wellbeing – including our living in harmony with Nature. Heterosexuality (procreation) is consistent with the health and welfare of African/Black people; it is fundamental to our survival, liberation from white dominance and pathology, our longevity, and the perpetuation of our race/species.

Culturally and politically intact African/Black societies have persisted in rejecting this pathology, and it is only where the cultural fabric has deteriorated that the pathology of homosexuality appeared and festered among us. It is the goal and objective of TaNefer Ankh to repair and restore the African/Black cultural fabric of our people that we may continue along the 'Way of Life' path. Consistent with this path is the practice of heterosexual (male-female procreation) relationships as our family standard, and the continual rejection of sexual pathology—including homosexuality.
